Mayor Makes Special Presentation to Former Police Chief's Wife

At the June 14th meeting of the Vienna City Council, Mayor Eddie Daniels made a very touching presentation to Mrs. Gale Musselwhite, wife of the late David Musselwhite.

Mr. Musselwhite began his 45 year career in law enforcement with the Vienna Police Department as an officer and later moved up to

Chief of Police where he served for many years. After retiring from this position as Chief, Musselwhite served on the Dooly County Sheriff's Department as a Captain. He passed away April 7 due to severe burns suffered in an accident.

Mayor Daniels presented Mrs. Musselwhite with a Vienna Police uniform shirt inscribed with her husband's name and title. Daniels stated, "He did a great job. He was a man of few words, but he was a family man and did a lot of good in the community."

America to Celebrate its 245th Independence Day

July 4, 2021 will be America's 245th Independence Day, the day Americans celebrate the birth of the United States as an independent nation. The Declaration of Independence announced the political separation of the 13 North American colonies from Great Britain and declared everyone has the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Since 1952, the original parchment document of the Declaration of Independence has resided in the National Archives exhibition hall in Washington, D.C., along with the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. It is held in an upright case constructed of ballistically tested glass and plastic laminate. A $3 million camera and computerized system monitor the condition of this important document.

4 Big Reasons Why You Should Shop Small and Shop Local

1. Small businesses give back (more) to your community

When you support a local business, you're also supporting your town, city, and neighborhood. On average, 48% of each purchase at local independent businesses is recirculated locally, compared to less than 14% of purchases at chain stores.

2. Small businesses make a major economic impact

Local businesses pay sales taxes to the City and County and provide jobs.

3. Small businesses provide better customer service

One of the biggest advantages they have over large retailers is the ability to provide more personable, hands-on, and memorable customer service.

4. Small businesses create a sense of community

Four-way Stop Installed at Georgia 215 and Georgia 257 Intersection

If you have recently traveled east out Highway 215 to the Highway 257 intersection, you will notice a recent change.

At the request of the Dooly County Commissioners, the Georgia Department of Transportation has converted the former two-way stop at the intersection to a four-way stop for safety reasons.

Signage and flashing lights are posted at the intersection to alert drivers of the change.

Happy Ending for Little Man

Recently this cute little chihuahua got separated and lost from his owner at the Pilot Travel Center located at I-75 Exit 109 in Vienna.

Little Man traveled all the way to South 6th Street where he decided to stay for a while, maybe because the owner at that location also had a pet chihuahua.

Vienna Animal Control was called and Officer Layfield picked up Little Man and took him to the city shelter. His picture was posted on Facebook and fortunately he and his owner have been reconnected.

Don't we just love stories with happy endings?!

Be Sure to Drink Plenty of Water During this Summer Heat

The human body is made up of mostly water. In fact, as much as 60 percent of an adult human is water. It's an essential life source and responsible for many bodily functions, from crying and spitting to eliminating waste and regulating body temperature.

Dehydration sets in when your body does not have enough water. Some of the signs of dehydration are:

- Dark yellow urine
- Lack of sweating
- Dry skin
- Rapid heart rate and breathing
- Dizziness

You can get water without having to drink it from a bottle. Sip on smoothies, eat some watermelon or crack open a can of coconut water. Just make sure to drink plenty of hydrating fluids each day and to carry water or a sports drink with you when you work or play under the hot summer sun.

You don't want to get caught in the heat without enough water in your system. Drinking lots of good Vienna water will help you stay safe and healthy.

Three Station TV – Part 3 by Neil Joiner

This will probably be my last column about TV shows from childhood unless something later begs to be addressed. Today I'll try to wrap things up with a brief look at some of my favorites from fifty plus years ago. It was the best of times for television worth watching. I Love Lucy has to be on the list of great series along with The Dick Van Dyke Show. I'm not sure if those situational comedies are still available for viewing but they should be. They prove that hilarity doesn't require vulgarity, crude language, or using "Oh my God!" as a punchline. Their scenarios were based around happily married couples whose amusing interactions gave us ample opportunities for laughter. They also helped us understand it's okay to laugh at ourselves.

The Danny Thomas Show was another of the clean comedy genre where you didn't have to wonder if it was okay for everyone to watch. The truth is if it's not okay for everyone, it's probably not okay for anyone. My Three Sons, Leave it to Beaver, and Father Knows Best, fit that same category.

A few years later The Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres, and Gilligan's Island captured our attention. On December 31, 2020, actress Dawn Wells died at age 82. She played Mary Ann on Gilligan's Island, the cute and wholesome girl-next-door type that suited her perfectly. It was nice when many of television's characters were good examples for the rest of us. If that same boat got stranded on an uncharted island in 2021, the crew would no doubt have a much different script. The theme of much of today's fare seems to be how low can we go. As close as we are to the bottom, I don't think we've hit it yet.

Perry Mason gave us the best you could find in the courtroom. Granted, the judge and the opposing attorney allowed him considerable leeway, but that was okay because the man with the gavel and those in white shirts at the other table all wanted to find the truth. My guess is there were some young men and women who became fine lawyers because they were inspired by Perry Mason's integrity. He didn't chase ambulances or compromise ethics. Justice seems to be steadily shifting downward on the list of motives for going to court. Money is at the top, I believe.

There were plenty of cowboy heroes like Roy Rogers, U.S. Marshal Matt Dillon, and The Lone Ranger. Roy showed us how to mount a horse with a running start. He drank coffee with Gabby Hayes instead of hanging out in the local saloon. There was a lot to like about Roy whether on screen or off. Matt Dillon didn't seem fast enough on the draw in the opening scene of Gunsmoke, but the other guy fell so I guess he was accurate. Matt was an excellent lawman, a man of courage and compassion. His close friendship with Miss Kitty never advanced to an upstairs bedroom in The Long Branch Saloon. That wouldn't happen today, except for maybe in a couple of early episodes.

The Lone Ranger intrigued me by how well a hero's identity could be disguised with a mask. Seems like someone would have figured it out and been able to answer the weekly question, "Who was that masked man?" I used to wonder where he got his silver bullets and how he earned enough money to pay for them. He was a good guy fighting bad guys and taught us to respect Native Americans, Indians as they were called then. Tonto was not only Kemosabe's capable sidekick, he was also his best friend.

The earliest show I remember watching is The Highway Patrol starring Broderick Crawford. I don't recall anything about it other than seeing Mr. Crawford on TV and hearing the sirens when someone was in a hurry. My main recollection is of our family going a few hundred yards up the road once a week to watch those patrolmen with my grandparents while we ate popcorn. It reminds me that watching TV can be time well spent when the storylines have value and the entertainment is clean.

It's hard to say what the most important lesson I learned from early television is, but maybe it's to be careful with what we watch. A lot of what I saw back then secured an enduring place in my memory bank. That would be just as true if the shows had been trashy. Perhaps I'm being sentimental, but there's one thing I can say with confidence about the bygone era of three-station TV. It was the best of times for television worth watching.
